NOTES ON NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE FREEMAN'S subscription for the Pennsylvania sufferers was closed to day and a report will be found elsewhere. The total amount raised in this city to date is $3,392.50.

THIRTY-THREE Chinamen in New York gave $296 to the Johnstown relief fund. In Johnstown the Hungarians robbed and mutilated the dead. Our laws say that the Chinese must go, but the Hungarians may stay.

This village of Fonda on the Mohawk had raised and put by $1,000 for a Fourth of July celebration when news of the Johnstown calamity came. The money was at once shipped to the sufferers, and patriotism will wait on pity.

The new directory of Albany city contains 40,362 names, against 39,494 in 1888. As the directory is supposed to represent two-fifths of the entire population, Albany probably contains 100,965 inhabitants. In 1889 the population was 90,758.

A big and strong movement for high license has started in Maryland, with leading men of all political parties behind it. Baltimore with 500,000 inhabitants has 4,000 saloons, some of them of the vilest description. High license is confidently expected to shut these up.

THE Utah Supreme Court decides that natives of the Sandwich islands are ineligible to citizenship, on the ground that they are neither Malays or Indians (the court does not know which). The Kanakas must go, though the Hungarian can come and rob the bodies of the dead.

THE opinion is gaining ground that the dead bodies not yet recovered in the Conemaugh river will not contaminate the water supply in the towns and cities below. These bodies are covered deeply with mud and sand, which are excellent disinfectants. Besides, the flood itself carried away many of the older impurities and left a clean bed for the streams.

EX-SENATOR SABIN of Minnesota sues for divorce. His wife, when an invalid, became addicted to morphine, and afterwards added intoxicants. She is now an inmate of an infirmary, placed there by her own request. Sabins complaint against her is that she has become a habitual drunkard. While in Washington she was regarded as a very brilliant woman and one of the most popular of entertainers.

WILLIAM KEMMLER of Buffalo, through his counsel, has filed notice of appeal in the office of the Clerk of the Court of Appeals, from the verdict and sentence of death, to be carried into effect at Auburn prison on the 24th inst. This appeal stays the execution until after a resentence, if the conviction is affirmed. Kemmler has decided objections to the new method of execution, though he did not give his victim a choice of deaths when he slew her.

LEONARD SWETT died in Chicago yesterday. He enjoyed the reputation of a great criminal lawyer, having secured acquittals for murder in nineteen out of twenty cases and a light punishment in the other. But his chief distinction was the fact that he nominated Abraham Lincoln in the Chicago convention of 1860 for President of the United States. He performed a similar service for Judge Graham in 1888, but with less success. He was 63 years old.

PERHAPS the cheekiest political incident of the current year is the story of a Democratic politician who had himself in a protection knothole "the late Presidential campaign, asking the question, 'Who are out of the race due to come in and pull the strings?' How can the masses 'get together' in a 'big war' where there is no room for defeat?"

They had better get together in the hole that they went into on the 4th of November, and from which they have not yet crawled out. That hole was big enough for the whole Democratic party and the Cleveland household. There is even more room in it to-day than then, because of the natural shrinkage of the party after defeat.

JOHN HATTON was bitten on the hand by a black tarantula while handling a lot of bananas at his fruit stand in Philadelphia last week. The hand at once swelled to an enormous size, and Hatton attended to a hospital. After the physician had attended to the wound he administered to his patient an enormous dose of whisky. Indeed, so much did he consume that he showed symptoms of delirium tremens in a few hours. But the whisky saved his life, and the next day he returned to his work with his hand reduced to its natural size but his head very big.

THERE is a bill in Governor Hill's hands, passed by the Legislature at the late session, to abolish the office of State Agent for Discharged Convicts. The Governor had recommended the abolition of this office in three successive messages, and at last the Legislature acted upon his suggestion. But last week the Governor appointed Michael Conway of Troy, one of Ed. Murphy's lieutenants, to this office. This week he must either sign the bill, veto it, or allow it to die of a pocket veto. If he vetoes it, Murphy will be mad again. If he approves it he stultifies himself.

THE State Assessors report that they find the farm lands depreciating in value while the worth of city estate is increasing. Assessors Wood ventures the opinion that there will be very few except tenement farmers in this state in a few years. There is no doubt that the farms are growing larger by absorption, and personal holdings becoming fewer. The farmers have never combined like manufacturers and workmen to hold up prices, and hence a large share of the results of their labor goes to the middlemen and speculators. The small farmers, crowded out by the larger ones, go West, while hired men and tenement farmers move into their dwellings. This process paralyzes the common school and the country church, for the population is shifted from American to foreign, and religious instruction from Protestant to Catholic.

GENERAL TELEGRAPH NEWS

Money for the relief of the sufferers by floods and by fire in Pennsylvania continues to be subscribed. The work of registration has been completed. Conservative estimates show that 10,000 persons perished in the deluge and by fire. To-day's tidings follow:

AT JOHNSTOWN TO-DAY.

By Telegram to The Freeman. JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 10.—This was another wet and close morning in this valley. When day broke the scene was dismal to a depressing degree. A penetrating drizzle came down and made everything wet and slippery. The thousands of men moved to their places of work with a half-awakening manner that augured poorly for a heavy day's work. When the whistle of the Cambria shops sounded, at 7 o'clock, the whole place was awake and the smoke from the many camp fires and burning debris made a heavy cloud that rested over the entire valley almost hitting it from view from the hills. Soon the valley was alive with its thousands of busy workmen, and the tenth day of work upon this sad undertaking began. There is little change in the general situation to-day, and all the various departments are moving along in a manner highly satisfactory to the parties in charge. The stopping of work by the Cambria Company yesterday gave their men a much-needed rest, and they went to work with much more vigor than the men employed on the general work. The same large crowds were on hand for their daily ration, and the various commissary stations were the scenes of great activity. The great quantities of debris which have been loosened from above the stone bridge and floated down stream have formed a large opposite Cambria City, and a number of men were sent there to-day to remove this, as it closed the channel, stopping the flow of water and rendering very difficult the work of removing the wreckage at the stone bridge. Another company of stationary engines arrived to-day, making 10 now here. These are most useful appliances and do the work of 20 men in removing the heavy timbers. They are placed in various sections of the town and did most effective work. One was put in position on the stone bridge and in two hours the work accomplished by it was more effective than the work done by the last two for the last two days. There have been deflected the efforts of the men to remove, were soon gotten rid of and the channel opened for a considerable distance from the bridge. The erection of a dynamo by the Westinghouse Electric Company near the Pennsylvania Railroad freight depot, is a most necessary work and anyone who has tramped around in the dark and appreciated the lighting of the last night, in fact every means of convenience and appliance for speeding the work is being used here. The visit of Governor Beaver yesterday has given renewed hopes to the stricken people, and his energetic action taken yesterday is being favorably commented on. The prompt and effective action by the Governor when he arrived impressed every one favorably, and especially the Pittsburgh Relief Committee, whose representatives went home well pleased to be relieved of the work of removing the debris and restoring order, leaving to them the accomplishment of one great object, the relief of the suffering. About 9 o'clock the downpour became heavy that it seriously interfered with the work and the men were called to places of shelter, but as soon as the rain became less heavy they went to work again. Arrangements for another company of men for the removal of debris will be made. To-day four cattle will be slaughtered for the use of both of Phila's men and hereafter, says daily. Much discussion has been had as to the personnel of the been had as to the personnel of the Commission to be appointed by the Governor to take charge of the relief work. It is generally admitted that it would be eminently proper that the Commission should be largely composed of Pittsburghers, as that body has already so satisfactorily managed the entire affairs of this section. After Wednesday Adjutant-General Hastings will have entire charge, and this section will be under strict military discipline. Sixty men were identified. The Rev. Father Troutman, Pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, reports that out of a congregation of 950 he has lost 113, and he believes the number of the drowned will reach 150.

10,000 WERE LOST.

By Telegram to The Freeman. JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 10.—The work of registering the survivors in the Conemaugh Valley is completed, and the total names between 10,000 and 20,000. It is estimated that about 1,000 who escaped are not included in the list, as they have left this part of the country since the flood. The clerks in the registration bureau say that a partial examination of the lists reveals about 1,000 duplications of names, so that those who failed to register will be counterbalanced by the number of duplications, leaving the total number of survivors at less than 20,000. A census made two weeks before the flood in the interest of the publishers of a directory gave the total population of the valley at 30,000, or a few hundred less than that figure. These facts bear out the estimate of a total loss of life close to 10,000.

UNDER GREAT MENTAL STRAIN.

By Telegram to The Freeman. JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 10.—In conversing with any number of persons who have lost all their property and family in the flood, one cannot help noticing the apparent absence of grief. So great has been the calamity and so universal the bereavement that individual sorrow is sunk out of sight, and the afflicted ones generally talk in a dazed connection, failing to realize the extent of the misfortune that has befallen them. Men who have lost wives, families and homes talk of their misfortune with apparent nonchalance and unconcern, as if nothing unusual or painful had happened, and cases of demonstrative grief are few and far between. WEAK WOMEN.

Why are they Weak and Can they become as Healthy and Vigorous as Men? Valuable Suggestions on the Subject.

At the Madison Square Garden, New-York, recently, five women, for six days in succession, rode over 100 miles each day upon bicycles, and at the end of that time were well and strong. This proves conclusively that women have strength and endurance often equal to men. Why, then, are they called weak? Because they make little effort to secure strength or retain it after it has been secured. Women are pale, sallow, troubled with many weaknesses and why? Because they do not observe the laws of health and keep their bodies as they should. Their blood becomes thin and flows slowly. It should be stimulated to strong and healthy action. Cosmetics will not do this, nor will the use of pure whiskeys, taken as a medicine, will. If the lady of society returning from a reception or shopping expedition, will use a little pure whiskey, nature will be assisted so that instead of breaking down it will be tired over until it can recuperate. If the weary woman who is beset by work and cares will do the same thing, she, too, will be helped. Anything that assists nature helps the body.

Regents' Examinations at Ulster and Kingston Academies—A Prize Awarded.

In Ulster and Kingston Academies Regents' examinations were held to-day, and will be continued on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The examinations are exactly the same, and are conducted as follows:

All question papers are prepared at the Regents' office. About three weeks before the examination each principal receives from Albany a blank form to be filled with the number of papers he may need in each subject. A sufficient number must be called for to give each scholar taking the examination one. The order for these papers is filled and the package sent to the principal the week before the examination. The package is securely sealed and the question papers on each subject are in separate envelopes and carefully sealed. The envelopes must not be opened until the examination in that subject. No one outside the Regents' office knows what the examination will be until it actually begins. The scholars must each sit at a separate desk, and have no books or help of any kind, nor hold any communication with any one until the examination is finished. The average time is two and one-half hours for each subject, and no scholar is allowed to leave the room during this time. The Principal must make sure that the regulations have been carefully enforced. There is no cheating, and the examinations are absolutely fair if the Principal does his duty.

The Committee appointed to examine essays of members of the Kingston Academy Graduating Class and decide as to the merits of the same met on Saturday night at the residence of A. T. Clearwater here.

Children's Day Here—Preachers Called to Pulpits in Near-By Localities.

The Children's Day services held in churches and Sunday Schools in this City yesterday were fully as interesting and were as largely attended as any held in previous years. The details follow: The programme used for the exercises in the St. James M. E. Church was that prepared for the use of Methodist churches by the Rev. C. H. Payne, D. D., L. L. D., and consisted mainly of singing and recitations by the children. Remarks were made by Francis J. Cheney and the Rev. O. Haviland. The church was elaborately decorated with flowers, and canary birds added their singing to that of the children. The Clinton-Avenue Church was decorated handsomely. The programme was the same as that in the St. James Church. Addresses were made by Walter Schenck and George Hunt. The church was crowded. The Elmwood-street Church was tastefully decorated with flowers. The programme arranged by the Rev. James A. Worden, D. D., for Presbyterian churches was carried out under the direction of George W. Burger. An address was made to the children by the Rev. J. F. Williamson. The programme in the Wurts-Street M. E. Church was the same as in the Clinton-Avenue and St. James Churches. An address was made by the Rev. Thomas Lamont. The floral decorations were effective. The services in the Rondout Presbyterian Church were held in the afternoon. The floral decorations were pretty studies in roses, daisies and grasses. The programme was the one arranged by Dr. Worden. Addresses were made by D. B. Abbe, the Rev. Dr. Sawyer and W. E. Bunt. Donations to the cause of missions were made by the children. In the Children's Church at Ponckkeocke a special programme was rendered, comprising singing and responsive readings. Now it is endeavoring to sell his grave and tombstone. He is going West, and as he cannot take the grave with him and the freight on tombstones is high, he says he has resolved to sell the highest bidder.

The mortified mother gave the youngster a kick under the table, when he added innocently: "You needn't kick me, mother, for I know cause I didn't tell a word about borrowing the napkins."

One of the stories told of Horace Greeley by a Rondout man is that Greeley came here one time and took a prominent part in the dedication of Music Hall in Kingston. The injunction will be argued next Saturday at White Plains.

The Dam at the Sawkill.
A resident of this City says if the South Fork dam, the giving away of which caused so much destruction in the Conemaugh Valley, had been built like the dam on the Sawkill, for the reservoir of the Kingston water-works, there would have been no danger.

The dam of the local water works contains an overflow of many feet in length, cut in the solid rock. The overflow is of such extent that during the heaviest freshets the water rises only a few feet. The surplus water flows in the ravine 60 feet below. Even though the water should rise much higher than the figures given, it would not flow over the dam for the dam proper is several feet higher than the surrounding country and so flanked with heavy stone masonry work that the water could not affect it.

The Proper Way to Save Money is to Repair Streets that Have Been Assessed for Their Improvement, and Not Spend it on Other Streets—A Proviso.

The following has been received by THE FREEMAN:
Editor of The Freeman:
I have a few words more to say in regard to our City streets, and have been waiting for the wide tire question to be settled first. This, however, may cause too much delay, as the favorable season for the work is now at hand, and other parties may engage the attention of the Common Council for an indefinite time. The question of how we shall have good streets is a burning one and any light thrown on it ought to be welcomed. In the remarks that I may now make I want you to understand that nothing personal is intended, as my only object is to conserve the public interest.

What seems to me to be the most important thing in this regard is the proper expenditure of the public funds, and I think they are being diverted from their proper channel, and an effort is constantly being made to do so, and in some instances in a most flagrant manner. The courts have decided that in changing a road to a city street the burden of the expense should fall on the lot-owners bordering the road or street, and when the improvement is made and accepted it is then the duty of the city authorities to maintain said streets and keep them in order. Is this system carried out in this City? Any one can see that it is not. There are streets that could mention on which some of the property was sold to pay the assessment that are now in a most dilapidated condition, while other streets that have not been assessed are being macadamized out of the public funds. Is this right? It is not, and should be discontinued at once. What seems to me to be the City to top-dress Foxhall-avenue where it has not even been graded or the gutters laid? If the City treasury was overflowing there might be some excuse for such action, but we all know that the Mayor knows and the Board of Aldermen know that there is not enough money on hand, or likely to be put even Union-avenue in a proper state of repair, to say nothing of other important streets that are in worse condition. What right have they to top-dress VanBuren-street and Bowery-street out of the general fund under these circumstances? They may think that having been allowed to raise $10,000 more per annum they may get enough to do things in this way, but expenses are increasing, they are constantly extending the water mains, and putting in more lamps and the roller is to be paid for from next year

In Ulster and Kingston academies Regents' examinations were held to-day, and will be continued on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The examinations are exactly the same, and are conducted as follows:

All question papers are prepared at the Regents' office. About three weeks before the examination each principal receives from Albany a blank form to be filled with the number of papers he may need in each subject. The package is securely sealed and the question papers are not put in separate envelopes and carefully sealed. The envelopes must not be opened until the hour arrives for the examination in that subject. No one outside the Regents' office knows what the examination will be until it actually begins. The scholars must call at a separate desk, and have no books or help of any kind, nor hold any communication with any one till the examination is finished. A few years ago Mrs. Umelle heard that her husband was the owner of property in Germany. She went to Germany, before William B. Scott, Superintendent of the Alms House, here. He is asking $100, and as he cannot take the grave with him and the freight on tombstones is high, he says he has resolved to sell to the highest bidder.

A woman here feels very sore over the late escape of her seven-year-old incorrigible. There were some visitors invited to tea one evening recently and during the course of the meal "John Henry Augustus" remarked with a chuckle: "Mother got all her best things on the table to-night, and you, ma'am?" The mortified mother gave the youngster a kick under the table, when he added innocently: "You needn't kick me under the table, now, cause I didn't tell a word about borrowin' the napkins."

One of the stories told of Horace Greeley by a Rondout man is that Greeley came here one time and took a prominent part in the dedication of Music Hall in Kingston. A resident of this City says if the South Fork dam, the giving away of which caused so much destruction in the Conemaugh Valley, had been built like the dam on the Sawkill, for the reservoir of the Kingston water works, there would have been no danger.

The dam of the local water works contains an overflow, of many feet in length, cut in the solid rock. The overflow is of such extent that during the heaviest freshets the water rises only a few feet. The surplus water flows in the ravine 60 feet below. Even though the water should rise much higher than the figures given, it would not flow over the dam for the dam proper is several feet higher than the surrounding country and so flanked with heavy stone masonry work that the water could not affect it.

He is going West, and as he cannot take the grave with him and the freight on tombstones is high, he says he has resolved to sell the highest bidder.

"Yes," said the mother, "I have." To an uninitiated person it is a source of wonderment how a team of horses or mules can live within the narrow limits of a stable on Northern canal. The reason is, however, more or less, that they are fed on a diet of hay and corn, and are kept in a state of constant motion.

The Dam at the Sawkill.

A resident of this City says if the South Fork dam, the giving away of which would do so much destruction in the Conemaugh Valley, had been built like the dam on the Sawkill, for the reservoir of the Kingston water-works, there would have been no danger.

The dam of the local water-works contains an overflow of many feet in length, cut in the solid rock. The overflow is of such extent that during the heaviest freshets the water rises only a few feet. The surplus water flows in the ravine 60 feet below. Even though the water should rise much higher than the figures given, it would not flow over the dam for the dam proper is several feet higher than the surrounding country and so diked with heavy stone masonry work that the water could not affect it.

THE STREET QUESTION HERE.

"J. G. L." HAS A FEW WORDS MORE TO SAY IN THE PREMISES.

The Proper Way to Save Money is to Repair Streets that Have Been Assessed for Their Improvement, and Not Spend it on Other Streets—A Proviso.

The following has been received by THE FREEMAN:

Editor of The Freeman:

I have a few words more to say in regard to our City streets, and have been waiting for the wide time question to be settled first. This, however, may cause too much delay, as the favorite sewer contractor of one of the other parties may engage the attention of the Common Council for an indefinite time. The question of the streets is a burning one and ought to be welcomed. In the remarks that I may now make I wish it to be understood that nothing personal is intended, as my only object is to conserve the public interest.

What seems to me to be the most important thing in this regard is the proper expenditure of the public funds, and I think they are being diverted from their proper channel to do so, and in some instances in a most flagrant manner. The courts have decided that in changing a road to a city street the burden of the expense should fall on the lot-owners bordering said road, and that when the improvement is made and accepted it is then the duty of the city authorities to maintain said streets and keep them in order. Is this system carried out in this City? Any one can see that it is not. The street funds that I could mention on which some of the property was sold to pay the assessment that are now in a most dilapidated condition, while other streets that have not been assessed are being macadamized out of the public funds. Is this right? It is not, and should be discontinued at once. What right have they to top-dress VanBuren-street and Bever-street out of the general fund under these circumstances? They may think that having been allowed to raise $10,000 more per annum they may get enough to do things in this way, but expenses are increasing, they are constantly extending the water mains, and putting in more lamps and the roller is to be paid for next year's funds and $44 per day to run it besides coal and water and machinists' bills to mention while all this the city is doing are treated to gush about getting a crusher and setting the papers at work to save money for the City to repair the streets that have been assessed for their improvement and not spend it on those that have not been assessed, except to keep them in ordinary repair.

J. G. L.

FROM A SAUGERITIES STANDPOINT.

[From the Saugerities Telegraph.]

The Board of Aldermen of the City of Kingston at a meeting a week ago on Friday showed much wisdom in passing a resolution "compelling all wagons carrying from one and a half to two and a half tons to use a three-inch tire; those carrying over two and a half to five tons a four-inch tire; and those carrying over five tons a six-inch tire," thus compelling the majority of those who use the roads to the greatest extent—and in a way to wear them out quickly, and who generally pay but little of the tax that is required to assist in contributing to their condition. If the people of Saugerities would take the same view of the wide tire principle that Kingston does, good roads could be maintained at probably less than half the expense that now attends their repairs. It is impossible to keep streets in anything like a respectable condition when blue-stone teams and others are allowed to draw loads of two to five tons over them with a tire between two and two and a-half inches in width, and many of them so rounded that scarcely more than a half-inch of the centre of the tire bears the entire burden, while the rest of the tire is in contact with the road, so galled that light vehicles find it difficult to get out after once getting into them. The tire of every vehicle intended for drawing loads should be a width proportionate to the load to be sustained. By so doing, those who have the greatest use of the roads would be giving them an amount of care equal to the extent of their use of them. As it is now, those who are burdened with the taxes required to keep the roads in repair, as a majority, have the satisfaction of seeing them constantly ruined by the heavily-loaded, narrow-tired wagons, which are owned and used mostly by those who pay but a small proportion of the taxes. Those who are now using wide tires in this village say the wagons draw as easily as those with narrow tires, and in most cases where the road is not too rough or uneven, narrow tires, especially if the road bed is not very hard, it is utterly impossible to maintain good streets unless the wide-tire principle is adopted for wagons that bear heavy loads. Ulster-avenue, for instance, is costing thousands of dollars to repair when completed, will undoubtedly be a very fine thoroughfare; but, how long will it be in a respectable condition if heavy loads are permitted to be drawn over it upon narrow-tired wheels? This is a matter in which the taxpayers are deeply concerned, and we contend that it is the duty of our authorities to use their influence and best judgment to the end that the tax-payers' interests be made equal if not paramount to those who are the greatest users of our thoroughfares.
